

MORRIS SEIFERLING

Assistant Deputy Minister

Sustainable Resource and Environmental Management

Morris Seiferling is the Assistant Deputy Minister of Sustainable Resource and Environmental Management, supporting the resource management departments of Energy, Environment and Sustainable Resource Development.

In this role, he is helping these departments and others work together in a more deeply integrated way and taking joint responsibility to achieve agreed-upon outcomes based on a set of principles and valued behaviours. The result will lead to better integration of policies, alignment and sharing of information and improving regulatory processes.

Morris has been working in the Alberta public service for 25 years. He started his career as the district supervisor for Public Lands in Drayton Valley in the early 80s. He then worked as regional manager for Grazing Reserves in West Central Alberta and then worked as the branch head for Central Region. Morris was also the regional director for Agriculture, Food and Rural Development, Peace Region and most recently served as Director of Technical Services Division for that department.
